The Consortium for Research on Aliyah (CRA) is a research center housed in the Department of Behavioral Sciences at Ariel University in Israel designed to study the variables that contribute to successful and adaptive immigration to Israel particularly for North American families. Our data will be used to provide a clear, scientific portrait of the issues to account for when contemplating immigration to Israel and assist in developing guidelines and instructional material for families, schools, and agencies working on maximizing the Aliyah process.

כניסה לחברה הישראלית

"I think maybe I would have gone to the army. I didn't have that experience... So I think in hindsight, it's a big piece of Israeli society. And, you know, especially now there is a feeling like all the chayalim and everyone talking about it and experiencing and everything like that. And I didn't go through that experience. So that would be maybe the only thing I would change."

Talya, 51-year-old, made Aliyah 30 years ago

חיי חברה והתנדבות בארץ

"We have a strong network of friends who are English speakers here in Jerusalem, many of whom made Aliyah in their late 50s and early 60s, like us, semi-retired. ... I also got involved in stuff here, and I got involved in Amutot, I sing in a choir in Jerusalem, and that's actually given me a link to more Hebrew-speaking Israelis, which has been helpful."

Chaim, 78-year-old, made Aliyah 2 years ago

אנטישמיות וקשר עם היהודים בחו"ל

"The... crisis, specifically in America, was centered around antisemitism that may have laid dormant...and exploded. For them, there was a shock of thinking that they were living a certain reality and then... facing a lot of antisemitism and honestly feeling life-threatening... And then we were... having our life threatened. It was dealing with two different crises in a parallel way, in parallel times. Trying very hard to be empathetic to each other, but each in our own crisis."

Yonina, 48-year-old, made Aliyah 32 years ago

חוסר חרטה לגבי החלטתם לעשות עלייה

"Not once. There's not even one thought about that. I think it's more like the opposite... I mean, when you understand that there's no such doubt, there's no such question. the whole family is here, my whole life's purpose is here. There's nothing, no regret whatsoever... I think I would be very upset if any of my kids would think about leaving. That would get me upset."

David, 54-year-old, made Aliyah 36 years ago
